Protected Data Service

How many times so far today have you stopped to think about oxygen? And yet without it, you would not last very long at all.

Being stranded in a submarine at the bottom of the ocean is not the right moment to hear from your engineer about an issue with the oxygen tanks.

How often today have you thought about your business data backups? If you haven't thought about it at all, then we'd like to help it stay that way.

XC360 treat client's data as the precious commodity it is. Data is the oxygen of your business, without which, your business comes to a halt.

Just like oxygen, we want to make the protection of your data something you can forget about.

We don't just backup your data, we manage, monitor, verify, test, maintain, track your backups as well as recover your "services" and not just your "data" using triple level backup solutions that mean you can rely on a solution that keeps you working.

Fully managed, automated backup services with resiliency built in ensure your emails, contracts, accounts, documents, employee records and client data are always available.
